THE MORNING'S NEWS.

WASHINGTON.

The Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Messrs. Hiscock and Robeson came into the ways and means committee room this morning, from the adjacent appropriation committee's room, and on behalf of that committee asked that the tariff commission bill be held back until the House can pass two more appropriation bills—namely, the Indian and diplomatic bills. The ways and means committee were easily persuaded to act in accordance with this suggestion. If the tariff commission bill gets before the House, it must have the status of a revenue bill, and as such it will precipitate a general debate. For this reason the Republicans, and many Democrats, are not anxious to see it reported. Mr. Kasson says he may let the House take a vote today or on Thursday, to see whether the consideration of the bill would be agreeable to it.

The Lost State Department Papers.

Senator Windom, from the committee on foreign affairs, presented a resolution instructing the committee to inquire into the alleged loss of papers in the office of the Secretary of State, and to investigate whether any member of Congress or other officer of the Government had any interest in the contracts relating to the nitrate and guano deposits of Peru.

Prospects of the Session.

The appropriations committee talk confidently of rushing the diplomatic and Indian bills through the House, but unless more energy is shown than has marked the proceedings thus far the bill will drag along indefinitely. The Democrats have about made up their minds that nothing of consequence will be done at this session outside of the necessary appropriation bills. Mr. Springer says that calendars are always gorged, and that no bills not reported have any living chance. He thinks Congress will do nothing but pass the appropriation bills with plenty of money in them. Another Democrat says it is safe to prophesy that nothing of consequence in the way of general legislation will be accomplished. This inability is due partly to the complicated rules, which hamper progress, and largely also to jealousies among the rival leaders of the Republican majority. The unfortunate organization of the House has resulted in what is almost a paralysis of business. Scarcely a single report from a committee has been ratified by the House. Never was there such a lack of those "parliamentary leaders" of which Mr. Blaine spoke yesterday. The Democrats are much better organized, especially for purposes of defence and obstruction. The indefinite postponement of the Tariff Commission Bill, by consent of the Ways and Means Committee, is a good illustration of the apathy and lack of method which prevails.

Praying with Guiteau.

The first clergyman whom Guiteau has allowed to talk to him on spiritual matters is the Rev. James W. Gaines, colored, of Georgetown, D. C., who paid a visit to the assassin's cell, yesterday, and prayed earnestly for the spiritual welfare of the condemned man. Guiteau's manner was quiet, and he seemed to be much affected.

The Trial of Sergeant Mason.

In the Mason court martial, Warden Crocker, of the District Jail, stated the first conversation he had with the assassin after the Mason affair. He said that Guiteau admitted that he did not see the person firing the shot. He then told the court the substance of the different and conflicting statements made to him by the assassin. By consent of the court, Mr. Bigelow entered specifications that Major Robinson would testify to the wounding of Mason during the war, and to his excellent character. The court adjourned to Thursday, when arguments will be heard.

Democratic Caucus.

A caucus of Democratic Representatives was held in the hall of the House tonight. There was a good attendance, and many speeches were made. The caucus occupied nearly three hours. Representative W. S. Rosecrans, of California, was unanimously elected permanent chairman of the Democratic caucus. Gen. Rosecrans accepted the position in an appropriate speech. Representatives Perry Belmont of New York and N. C. Blanchard of Louisiana were elected caucus secretaries. Immediately after the election of officers, the object of the caucus was announced to be the appointment of a Democratic Congressional campaign committee. After a discussion of more than two hours duration, it was decided, upon motion of Representative Thompson, of Kentucky, that the committee should be composed of the state delegations in Congress in which there are Democrats; that the committee should be empowered to appoint an executive committee on the part of the House of Representatives, to consist of seven members, whose duty it shall be to act in conjunction with a similar executive committee to be appointed by the Senate, the joint committee to have charge of the Democratic campaign. The chairman was also authorized to appoint a committee of three on pairs. This committee will be announced hereafter.

Notes.

The President has approved the Apportionment bill.

The Senate committee on foreign relations today agreed to report back the nomination of ex-Senator Sargent as Minister to Berlin, with a recommendation that it be confirmed.

The President has positively declined to interfere in the case of the three Indian scouts sentenced to be hanged at San Carlos, Arizona, on Friday next, and the sentence will be executed.

The House committee on ways and means agreed today not to insist upon the consideration by the House of the tariff commission bill until after the immediate deficiency appropriation and Indian appropriation bills have been disposed of.

The decrease of the public debt for the month of February will be about $9,000,000 less than the average decrease since June last. The falling off is due to heavy payments made during February, one item of which was about $3,000,000 on account of pensions.

The Supreme Court of the United States reassembled today for the transaction of business, after its four weeks recess. Owing to the fact that the Justices had had only one brief conference for the discussion of the opinions which they had severally prepared during the recess, the announcement of decisions was postponed until next week.

Irish Matters.

LONDON, March 1.—The Standard says:—During the Lords' inquiry into the working of the Land act, every effort will be made to avoid touching too closely upon the conduct of the executive. Mr. Forster will be one of the first witnesses examined.

DUBLIN, March 1.—The case of the appeal from the recent judgment of Commissioners O'Hagan, Little and Vernon, affirming the decision of the Assistant Commissioners under the Land act, in reducing the tenant's improved fixed lease rent from £36 10s. to £30, came up in the Court of Appeals today. The Lord Chancellor supported the judgment of the Commissioners, but the Lord Chief Justice and other judges disagreed on the main question, and laid down principles on all points raised, to guide the Commissioners in future actions.

In the House of Commons this afternoon, Sir Henry James, Attorney General, moved a resolution declaring void the election of Mr. Michael Davitt, who was returned to fill the vacancy for Meath, caused by the resignation of Mr. A. M. Sullivan.

The resolution was carried by a vote of 208 to 20.

Piles! Piles!! Piles!! No One Need Suffer.

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams's (an Indian remedy), called Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 years' standing. No one will suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. WILLIAMS'S INDIAN PILE OINTMENT absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice; gives instant relief, and is prepared ONLY FOR PILES, itching of the private parts and nothing else.

Read what Hon. Judge Collinbury, of Cleveland, says: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment."

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 28.

Senate.

The Senate met this morning as per adjournment, Gov. Littlefield in the chair.

Senator Seabury, of Newport, from the committee on engrossed acts reported as truly and rightly engrossed, the acts of incorporation of the Swedish Christian Society, and Royal Bellevue Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Providence. Read and passed.

Senator Bourn, of the finance committee, called up the House appropriation bill, and reported the following amendments therein recommended by the committee:—For the payment and mileage of the members of the General Assembly, $13,600 instead of $12,500. For purchase and binding of books and documents, $250, instead of $200. For free public libraries, $2,500, instead of $2,000.

When the appropriation for orders of the governor was reached, Senator Doyle introduced an amendment that "for the proper execution of the law, the detection of crime and the apprehension of offenders to be paid from time to time upon the order of the Governor, four thousand dollars."

Senator Bourn objected to the amendment on the ground that unless a special act was passed that the Governor could not draw from the general treasury for the payment of orders of more than one thousand dollars, as provided for in the appropriation bill. It is just as easy to make an additional section to the present act for the specific object contained in the amendment.

Lieut. Gov. Fay held that if the amendment was made there would be no difficulty experienced in obtaining it, as the Governor is authorized to draw an order for anything of a public nature.

After some further discussion, indulged in by Senators Whitcomb, Arnold, Bourn, Handy, Cross and Doyle, the latter withdrew the amendment, recognizing the force of the objection that a special act should be made to cover the matter, although he was earnestly desirous of having the amendment appear on the appropriation bill, that it might hereafter appear there and exert its pressure. He subsequently submitted an amendment to section 5, chapter 14, as follows:—

SECTION 5. He may draw orders upon the General Treasury for the payment of any particular services of a public nature not exceeding in amount $1000.

He may also draw orders upon the General Treasurer for the execution of the laws, the detection of crime and apprehension of offenders not exceeding in amount $1000, and not including therein the sum to be paid under section 3 of this act as a reward for the apprehension of offenders. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Senator Bourn explained that the increase in the appropriation for the General Assembly was recommended to meet the expense of the special session in June next, and for that which elected the successor to Gen. Burnside; and for free public libraries, as there were several new ones established, and they should be entitled to the same privileges as those enjoying the appropriation. Lieut. Gov. Fay also endorsed the recommendation of the committee in behalf of the board of education. The Senate then concurred with the House bill as amended, and it was communicated to the House under a suspension of the rules.

Senator Wilbur, from the committee on judiciary, reported back a resolution recommending the granting of the petition of Horatio W. Angell and others to build a wharf on Block Island. Passed in concurrence.

Senator Seabury, from the committee on engrossed acts, reported as truly and rightly engrossed the act in amendment of the charter of the Third Freewill Baptist Church of Providence. Read and passed.

Senator Bourn, from the committee on judiciary, reported back the bill providing for the election of superintendent of public schools by the school committee, with recommendation that it be passed. The bill was passed and was communicated to the House under a suspension of the rules.

The Senate then adjourned to Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

House.

The House met at 11 o'clock, Mr. Speaker Sanborn in the chair.

Mr. Sheffield introduced a joint resolution for final adjournment Friday, March 10th. Laid on the table temporarily.

Mr. Spooner reported back from the Committee on Accounts a resolution to pay the bill of Albert C. Landers, $52.55, for draping the Newport County Court House and Jail. Read and passed.

Mr. Sheffield (by request) introduced a bill for an act in amendment of chapter 184 of the Public Statutes "Of the Administration of Testate and Intestate Estates," to provide that the Supreme Court in Equity may authorize the parties named in a will, before a final decree approving the same has been entered, to adjust by arbitration and compromise any controversy that may exist or may arise thereon, between the persons claiming as devisees or legatees under such will and those persons entitled to the estate of the deceased under the statutes regulating the descent and distribution of intestate estates. Referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. Sheffield reported back from the Committee on the Judiciary a substitute for the bill for an act to further define and punish bribery at elections. The substitute bill was as follows:—

It is enacted by the General Assembly as follows:—

SECTION 1. Every person who shall give, or offer to give, and any person who shall receive or offer to receive, any money, or other valuable consideration, for the giving or withholding a vote at any election, and any person who shall furnish or in any way provide any money to be expended in bribing any person to vote, or to withold his vote, and any person who shall promise to procure, or offer to procure, any office, place or employment for another in order to induce any person to vote or to withold his vote, shall be deemed to be guilty of bribery; and for such offence shall be punished as is prescribed in section 3 of chapter 13 of the Public Statutes, and every vote given in violation of the provisions of this act shall be void and not be counted.

Mr. Sheffield made a speech setting forth the importance of the subject embraced in the bill, and the need of legislation which shall punish the receiver as well as the giver of a bribe. He said that voting was not a right but a trust, a trust conveyed for the benefit of society, and to be exercised only for the benefit of society. A man had no more right, he said, to use his vote for his private or sinister purposes than he would have to take trust money belonging to widows or orphans and appropriate it to his own uses. The bill, he said, was one step towards civil service reform, and he deemed it eminently fitting and proper that Rhode Island, which was the home of the author of this great movement, should recognize its justness in the bill now before the House.

After a brief discussion, the bill was laid upon the table temporarily.

Senate act placing the appointment of Superintendent of Public Schools in the hands of the school committees of the several towns was referred to the Committee on Education.

The House then adjourned.

A STRANGE PLAYER.

When the Paris cabmen are not insolent they are too amiable. This is quite as dangerous for the travellers, and sometimes also for the drivers themselves. It was an excess of amiability which brought Didier to the tribunal of correctional police (a sort of police court.) The witness, a lady, related her adventure thus:—"I had staid at a friend's house till 2 o'clock in the morning, and I was leaving, after losing at cards almost all the money I had with me. The host accompanied me to the door of the house, called a cabman, and told me at the moment when I was getting in the vehicle, 'Ah! while I think of it, we ruined you tonight; I hope you have not been so unlucky at cards as not to have enough to pay for your fare.' 'Reassure yourself,' I said laughingly, 'I always keep, at least, the price of the cab-fare.' Then I gave my address to the cabman, and we started. When we arrived in the middle of the Champ de Mars the cab stopped, and the driver came down from his box. I thought that some accident had happened to the horse; but what was my surprise when the door of the hackney was opened, and the cabman appeared, holding in his hand one of the carriage lanterns, and saying to me with the utmost politeness, 'Madam, I have heard by chance that you had played at cards. I am passionately fond of play, and I invenlwayscards with me; here they are.' In saying this he drew a pack of cards from his pocket, got into the carriage, sat opposite to me, and said to me, 'A little bezique! Whose deal shall it be?' He offered me the cards for me to take one. I was so surprised that I did not know what to say: I asked myself if that man was not mad, or drunk? 'You have lost all that you had,' he said, 'I shall not ask you to play heavy stakes; let us play for the fare at 1,200 of bezique.' What was I to do, in the Champ de Mars at 2.30 in the morning? There was no policeman that I could call to help; the easiest thing was to accept the game. Besides, I was so struck by this ludicrous adventure that I laughed heartily. I won the fare: the coachman then said, 'All right, I'll drive you for nothing.' He set on his box, and we set out, while I was bursting of laughter. When we arrived, I wanted to pay the fare, as I had no idea of having played seriously with my cabman. He refused to receive anything, however, saying I owed him nothing, for he had lost the game. I left off laughing then, and told him seriously that if he would not take my money I should throw it into his cab. Then the man began to abuse me, saying he was as good as I any day; that I had won, and I offended him by wishing to pay him. As policemen were passing then, I told them what had happened, and entered my house." The Judge:—"Well, Didier, what have you to say?" Didier:—"I have to say that gambling debts are sacred. When one loses, one pays; and when he who has gained wishes to pay all the same, he offends a citizen—that's my character. If it had not been a lady things would not have happened thus." The tribunal condemned this strange cabby to two days' imprisonment.

"WILSONIA"

MAGNETIC

CLOTHING!

—AND—

Ladies' Corset.

The telegraph and telephone are wonderful inventions! But are no comparison to the health-giving and life-preserving "WILSONIA." The garments, when worn in sufficient quantities to cover the spine and nerve centres, according to directions, will cure all diseases that are curable. They will cure the worst cases of Catarrh ever known, and there is probably not a case of Paralysis but can be cured, if worn according to directions. All sensible men know that medicine will not cure paralysis, but the MAGNETIC CLOTHING will do it. It will also cure Rheumatism, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation and Bleeding of the Lungs, Heart Disease, Albuminous Urine, Locomotor Ataxia, Gout, Varicose Veins, Congestion of the Kidneys, Spinal diseases, and all kinds of Female Weakness. Also a preventive as well as a cure for Pneumonia, and all contagious diseases, such as Small-pox, Scarlet Fever, Erysipelas, etc. There are now 17,000 people wearing these garments in New York, Brooklyn, Boston and Providence, and there are men of great minds, such as Peter Cooper, Thurlow Weed, Com. Garrison, Gen. Graham, and thousands of others.

There have been scores of these garments sold in this city in the last few weeks, and they are doing wonderful cures. Names and testimonials can be seen at this office.

MR. LILLIBRIDGE,

the agent for the city, was stricken down with paralysis, laid for weeks in St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and the physicians pronounced his case entirely hopeless. Mr. Lillibridge put on the garments the 25th of June, 1881, and is today almost as well as he ever was. Send or call for a circular at the Principal Office for New England.

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS AND THE NEWPORT JOURNAL.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 137 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news,—local and general. The Journal is a large 28 column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer.

Notices of births, marriages and funerals 50 cents each.

Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week and are allowed twenty-five changes a year.

The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

The News has four steam presses and is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

Newport Daily News.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1882.

The Western Union Telegraph Company is reducing its salaries and force of clerks.

Messrs. Conkling and Sargent will probably be confirmed at today's executive session.

The cotton mills at Lancaster, England, are to suspend operations for a fortnight prior to the 12th of April.

The explosion of a New York sewer, caused by the ignition of a mass of closely confined sewer-gas, will probably confirm the opinion of some people that sewers are a very bad thing indeed to have around.

Mr. Blaine's memorial address, which has been highly praised on all sides, will probably be printed in book form and handsomely bound. Representatives in Congress will be furnished a limited number of copies for distribution.

There is a bill before the New York legislature to extend Wall street through Trinity church yard. It would be a shame to disturb the resting place of the old New Yorkers, and an especial shame to extend Wall street through their sacred acre.

It is very encouraging to see a paper like the New York Commercial Advertiser roundly berating the President for showing "weakness" in appointing Messrs. Conkling and Sargent to the Supreme Bench and the German mission, instead of giving them Cabinet positions, as the Commercial desired him to do.

A panic has been caused in Louisiana by a break or crevasse in the Mississippi levee near Lake Providence. The break is thirty yards wide and the water is rushing through it at a fearful rate. The river, meantime, is still rising. Heavy showers prevailed yesterday. The suffering increases. A boat with $100,000 worth of provisions is on its way from St. Louis.

The General Assembly is evidently engaged in a desperate flirtation with the fair sex in the matter of the woman suffrage petitions. Notwithstanding the recent indefinite postponement of the matter, another joint special committee on the subject has been appointed. The manner of the sexes seems to have been reversed in this affair, for it is usually the gentler sex which swears it will ne'er consent and then consents.

The Springfield Republican slops over as follows:—

If Senator Hoar had the spirit to get up in the United States Senate on the instant and denounce the appointment of Conkling as a Justice in good old-fashioned, red-hot English, glory to God! What is the old Puritan blue blood for, straight down from Lexington and Bunker Hill, if it is not to boil over on such occasions, when there is no help for an insult but to resent it on the spot?

There is quite an agitation in Wisconsin for the removal of the capital of that state from Madison to Milwaukee, and the talk has proceeded so far that the Milwaukeeans have already selected a site for the State House. The people of the state are not likely, however, to permit the removal of the seat of government from their present beautiful and centrally located capital—a charming little city, of which the state is justly proud.

In the Senate yesterday a resolution was introduced looking to an investigation of all points involved in the Chili-Peruvian scandal. Action will be taken on the resolution at today's session. The post-route bill was reported, the amendments of the Senate committee agreed to, and the measure passed. A conference committee on the immediate deficiency appropriation bill was appointed, and Mr. Miller, of California, spoke for an hour and forty minutes on the Chinese immigration bill. The House passed the military academy appropriation bill and also a bill abolishing discriminating duties on tea and coffee grown in colonies of the Netherlands. The former bill appropriates $318,857. The elections committee reported that neither Messrs. Campbell nor Cannon were entitled to a seat in the House as delegate from Utah.

The British House of Lords is preparing a catastrophe for itself in resisting the will of the House of Commons. Its former obstructive attitude toward the Land act, from which it was compelled to recede in some measure, inflamed the people against the upper House, and now its deliberate attempt to get in the way of the successful workings of that act has incensed the people to a still greater degree. The proposed investigation is nothing less than an attempt to discredit the Land act. Mr. Gladstone is not the firmest man in the world, but he has already taken one step toward resistance of the Lords, and the support of his party, spontaneously offered, is likely to nerve him up to an open conflict with the hereditary legislators. The question of the right of the Lords to continually block the wheels of reformatory legislation will have to be decided at the hustings before long, and the Lords, recognizing this fact, probably will refuse their consent to the bill for the extension of the suffrage in the counties.

John Boyle O'Reilly, the editor of the Boston Pilot, has been upheld by the Bunker Hill Land League of that city for his course on the Irish question, and the Central Land League has been censured for censuring him. The censure of the Central League will not injure Mr. O'Reilly in the estimation of Irishmen. They know that they have no better friend than he, and condemnation of him is likely to react on those who condemn him. He does not, by any means, go to such extremes in advocating the Irish cause as many of his countrymen in America do, but it does not follow that his advice is worse than theirs. The Pilot, which Mr. O'Reilly edits, is largely owned by the Archbishop of Boston, and of course the conservatism of the church influences its position on Irish matters, but Mr. O'Reilly doubtless follows his own best judgment so far as his personal attitude on Irish matters is concerned.

In spite of the fact that Minister Morton's personal connection with the Credit Industriel bargain has not been clearly made out, and the further fact that the signature of the agreement by the firm of Morton, Bliss, & Co., even after Mr. Morton had become Minister to France would not seem to impair his usefulness as our Minister of France, some of the newspapers continue to comment on the affair in an unfriendly way. The Boston Herald thinks that "Mr. Morton's position is a delicate one, and his part in the transaction has not been satisfactorily explained." The Springfield Republican says:—"For Mr. Morton, private citizen, it may have been all right; but it should have debarred him from attempting to act as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to the French Republic." The Boston Journal says:—"We are quite ready to deprecate attempts to 'assail' the character of our public men, but in this case there is nothing which any one can say about Mr. Morton which is half as injurious as the bald statement of the facts of his course. If his character is assailed, it is himself who is the assailant; and if there is any possible explanation of his conduct which can put it in a better light than that in which it stands at present, the investigation which Congress has ordered is due to him as well as to the country." The Chicago Tribune thinks that "Minister Morton has, by all accounts, very loose commercial notions of what constitutes political morality."

ARMY AND NAVY NOTES.

Among the President's callers yesterday were Gen. W. S. Hancock and Gen. O. O. Howard.

The Navy Department is informed of the arrival of the Vandalia at Aspinwall February 13 from Cartdagena, having called at Porto Bello; and of the departure of the Yantic from Aspinwall February 14 for Raritan and Belize.

Gen. Sherman, with Gen. Poe and Col. Morrow, of his staff, will leave Washington today for a tour of inspection of the Texan frontier of Mexico. They will visit the military posts at the following places:—Little Rock, Ark., San Antonio, Texas, Laredo (Fort McIntosh), Corpus Christi, Fort Clark, Fort Duncan, San Felipe, Fort Davis and Fort Bliss (El Paso), Texas. It is also probable that the trip will be extended through the Yosemite Valley to San Francisco. Gen. Sherman's daughter, Miss Lizzie, and Gen. Poe's daughter, Miss Winfred, will accompany the party.

The House committee on military affairs had under consideration Tuesday, Representative McGinnis's bill relative to the pay of officers of the army, and after agreeing to two amendments, instructed Representative Davis to make a favorable report on it to the House. As adopted, the bill provides that whenever any commissioned officer of the army below the rank of major, shall have served under one commission, or in case of having been transferred or appointed from the volunteer to the regular service, or from one corps or an arm of the service to another, under more than one commission, but in the same grade of fifteen years, he shall be entitled to and shall receive the pay and allowance of the grade next above that in which he shall have so served for such period without promotion, provided that nothing contained in the bill shall authorize any increase in the rank or number of officers in the army or any corps or regiment thereof as now allowed by law.

"MA COUNTRYMAN BURNS."

At a Burns banquet held recently in Montreal, a goodly number of chiels from the land of prose, kail and parritch sat down to an enjoyable Canadian dinner, which was pronounced almost as good as the universal gruel diet in the land of the heather. Sandy McGrab, a distinguished stranger, made the speech of the evening. After fortifying himself with a gill of old Scotch, he cleared his throat, and on being presented by the chairman, who had never seen or heard of him before, in a flattering speech, he said:—

"Leddies and gentlemen, I'm awfu' prood o' the great honor an respect ye show in Cunnada to ma countryman Burns. I'm also prood to tell ye that in ivry land ye find Scotchmen at the head o' affairs. Perhaps ye dinna ken it, but I am a Scotchman ma sel. I'm only just oot fra Glasca, an owing to head winds and snaw only arrived yester morn, as I said before ye may not ken it, but I assure ye, leddies and gentlemen, that I am a Scotchman ma sel, an' awfu' prood o' that great honor and respect shown not only in Cunnada, but the world ower to ma countryman, 'Robbie Burns.' Scotland is the land o' sang, an' all the world has drawn its music frae Scotland and Italy, but maistly frae Scotland. Ye see I'm awfu' prood o' Scotland, but perhaps ye dinna ken it that I'm a Scotchman me sel frae Glasca, whar they speak the purest English in the world, an' mony a mon frae Glasca is taken to be an Englishman, but I'll no detain ye, sae here's the toast o' a' toasts, 'Ma countryman Burns.'"

MISUSE OF FIREARMS.

A boy named Chase living near Pleasant street yesterday discharged a gun loaded with ball cartridge so that the ball entered the house of Mr. William Lovie Tilley and buried itself in the wall of a room in which his children were playing. The course of the ball through the room was such that the escape of one, at least, of Mr. Tilley's children from a severe if not fatal wound seemed wonderful. The mother of the boy has surrendered the arms and munitions to the police as that appeared to be the only way of preventing a repetition of the affair. It is not known whether the boy was preparing for the spring campaign against the Indians or not.

PRESENTATION.

A very pleasing incident occurred yesterday afternoon at Mr. Lawton Coggeshall's store on Commercial wharf in the presence of several of the leading officers of the training fleet. A solid gold medal was presented to Mr. Hugo Caro, the mail orderly of the United States gunnery ship Minnesota, whose term of enlistment expired February 28th. The gift was the present of a few of the business men of Newport, with whom Mr. Caro has come in contact while in the discharge of his duties, and was presented as a token of their respect for his gentlemanly deportment. Mr. Caro was taken completely by surprise, and accepted the gift in a very modest but appropriate speech. The medal, which was made by Mr. George O. Hermann, of this city, is of solid gold and beautifully designed. It has a wreath of roses on the front with this inscription:—"Presented to Hugo Caro by his friends, Newport, R. I., March, 1882." On the reverse is the Latin inscription:—"Suum Cuique." The medal, which was skillfully and tastefully executed, was enclosed in a handsome case.

The officers of the Minnesota have also remembered Mr. Caro. The medal would have been presented by Commodore Luce had that gentleman been in the city. Mr. Caro leaves Newport with the best wishes of all who know him, including every officer of the training fleet.

LORD ARTHUR CLINTON.

Concerning the report that Lord Arthur Clinton was living in Milwaukee and serving as a workman in the rolling mills, the New York World says:—Lord Arthur Clinton was implicated in what was known as the Boulton-Park scandal in 1870. A number of men, among them Mr. Stafford Fiske, then American Consul at Leith, were arrested for "misdemeanor in conspiracy." It was admitted that they had been in the habit of dressing in women's clothes and appearing at theatres and other public resorts, and it was shown that Lord Arthur had lived in the same lodgings with Park, who passed as a woman and whom his lordship was in the habit of addressing as "his dearest Fanny." Boulton, Park and the others were brought to trial and discharged, the evidence of the crime imputed to them being defective. Lord Arthur Clinton died at Christ Church on June 18, 1870. It was first announced that he had died of scarlet fever, and then that he had committed suicide. That he died, however, is beyond question. It having been stated in the weekly prints that he had fled the country to avoid exposure, a member of his family and the doctor and solicitor who were present at his death certified to it; and at the trial of Boulton and Park at the Old Bailey in May, 1871, a certificate of Lord Arthur's death was put in on behalf of Dr. Gedburgh Richardson then one of the Metropolitan police surgeons, who, at the instance of the Home Office, had examined the body. Lord Arthur, it may be added, just before death signed a paper addressed in the form of a letter to the editor of the Morning Post, in which he solemnly protested his innocence of the graver charge.

MR. BEECHER ON IMMORTALITY.

The text of Mr. Beecher's sermon at Plymouth Church on Sunday, the 27th, was from First Corinthians, xv., 19:—"If in this life only we have hope in Christ we are of all men most miserable." "Taking human nature as it is in this life," said Mr. Beecher, "no abstract idea that virtue is the best policy would sustain man. The knowledge of an after existence is indispensable. All religions are founded on this belief. Whatever men may scientifically believe, there is something in men that refuses to doubt as to a future existence. When Tyndall was walking amid the glorious scenes of the Alps his companion said:—'Can you look upon this glorious sunset and not feel that there is a God?' 'Oh, yes,' he said, 'I feel it; if you do not ask me to prove it.' Now, the mischievous notion of the Bible is that it has been dictated by God and written down as the daughter of Milton wrote his poems from his dictation. The Bible is the work of evolution, the unfolding of human consciousness, the work of thousands of years. And no doctrine has been so long in unfolding as the doctrine of immortality. There is nothing of it in the early records and it is not until you get down to the Patriarchs that it begins, and then but faintly, in seed form as it were.

Abraham was a grand old chief, but there is no record that he said anything of immortality or of anything else that you would call to remembrance. Isaac was also a great chieftain, but with him the woman was mightier than the man. Even the great lawgiver Moses said nothing of an after life. And so the ages go marching down, but there is not a man among them that gives any direct testimony as to this doctrine or belief in immortality. You cannot find anywhere in the Old Testament any mention made of it. It is not until you come to the New Testament that a life hereafter is referred to. The seed of this idea was in early nations, but the growth and development of it were left to modern nations. God left men to find this out as He left them to find out many other things, and this idea is to me far grander and sublimer than that other idea that God created it with a bang, a flash. It is the product of evolution, as is all other processes of life and creation. It is said that this immortality does not apply to the lower animals. Well, who shall say that it does not? If some dogs don't go to heaven, what chance have their masters? I thank St. John that he has put horses in heaven; they ought to go there, and if the picture drawn of the other place is correct, some of their owners ought to go there. No man so strongly longs for immortality as the man that is most richly endowed.

The old idea of a hell with an eternal tormenting devil is blood red with cruelty, and men in their indignation at the abominable travesty of punishment, have refused to believe that there was a future. They do not, perhaps, disbelieve, but they say, 'Prove it to us;' they become agnostics; they don't know the agnostics are the know-nothings; they say that is true which can be demonstrated; there may be a God, but there is no proof of it; there may be a continued existence, but then we cannot prove it. Agnosticism is better than open infidelity. I have not an unkind word, but wonderful compassion for one who has been driven step by step into doubt. Now, nothing is true except of that which admits of proof. I carry within me a heavenly body, and I defy anybody to measure it. If you are not bound to believe anything except you have proof of it, then away with courage, away with honor, away with many other qualities, the existence of which is undoubted, but which cannot be proved.

In behalf of the young men who take a paragraph in a newspaper for argument, who have listened to false teachings until their minds are disturbed, I ask them, 'Why should you want to disenchant yourselves of the belief of a glorified existence after death? Has it ever done you any harm? To take it away would be like disenchanting a castle taking away all its furniture, all its pictures and works of art and leaving nothing but the bare walls. If you could by scientific process prove that there was no evidence of immortality, what would you gain? What man worthy to call himself a man that does not carry within him the assurance of immortality. Our life here has been so hampered and hindered, I must go where I shall not be dominated by the animal. Though ten thousand scientific men should prove to me that there was no immortality, I have that within myself which declares that there is, and there is my comfort, my hope. Believe that you are more worthy than a dog, of more value than a rotting daisy; believe that you will one day stand with the spirits of the just, made perfect, and that they shall be your daily and familiar companions."

OLD SOUTH STREET REMINISCENCES.

The New York correspondent of the Utica Herald writes:—The public seldom hears now of South street, and yet it was once the great centre of New York commerce. It fronts on the East river, where formerly all the shipping lay; but since trade has moved to the North river side, South street has declined. Among the former glories of this commercial centre were the granite warehouses erected by the old house of the Griswolds, who boasted that it was completely fireproof. Last Sunday, however, beheld its ruins. There is no certainty in our so-called fire-proof buildings until they are put to the test. These warehouses were built for the purpose of storing tea, and have in their time contained that article to the value of $25,000,000, but the tea trade has found another quarter and these warehouses were only used for storage. It will be some time before South street sees their equal. Looking back upon the past, I may add that when I was a clerk South street men held the highest rank among the merchant princes of the metropolis. Henry Grinnell, who fitted out the Arctic expedition, was a South street man, and so was Moses Taylor. Howland & Aspinwall was also a grand house which had reached immense wealth. The Griswolds were also immensely rich, and carried on a great traffic with China. All this, however, has passed away. Trade has moved to the north side of town, and South street has lost caste and its traditions are only revived by the recent calamity.

It is related that when the Legislative Committee on Charities, etc., visited the Taunton Asylum recently, one of the patients exhibited an automatic toy of his invention in which a prostrate wooden man was receiving a severe kicking and thumping by others. "Don't you think it rather severe on that poor fellow to be mauled and kicked in that way?" asked a legislator. "Oh, no," was the reply; "you can't hurt him—he's insane."

KATE SOTHERN.

THRILLING STORY OF AN INJURED WIFE'S REVENGE.—A ONCE MOUNTAIN BELLE IN A GEORGIA PRISON.—TOUCHING APPEAL TO WOMEN FOR HER VINDICATION.

Five years ago there lived in Pickens county, among the mountains, as fair a lass as such a region is proverbial for producing, a rosy-cheeked, brown-haired, blue-eyed maiden with the form of a model and the grace of a gazelle. She was the daughter of a well-to-do farmer and her smiles were courted by the brave-hearted young mountaineers who engaged in honorable competition for a monopoly of her society. Among those was a dashing young man, handsome, of princely carriage, and whose fame for courage made him known in all the counties around. Dauntless in love as in all things else, he laid siege to the heart of this mountain belle, to whom she capitulated, and though but a girl in years—17 she was—they were married. She idolized her husband, and clung to him with a worshipful devotion, happy only when with, and ready to sacrifice her life if need be for him. And he, feeling secure in her love, repaid her attachment with indifference, and gave more attention to another, a former rival of his wife, than was consistent with his duty as a husband. She bore this long in silence, and tried to persuade herself that there was nothing wrong in her husband's conduct. But the seed of jealousy was planted in her heart, and it found nourishment in the buoyancy that once existed there. Ere many months the bloom on her cheeks faded, the brilliancy of her eye departed, her merry laugh was no longer heard, and the once light-hearted and happy girl was changed to the disconsolate and brooding woman. And still no complaint of her husband. He would come back to her she thought. But her confidence was misplaced; and at last, when one night a dancing party was given at her father's house, where she lived, and the source of her unhappiness was among the invited, she approached her husband, and affectionately entwining her arms about his neck, begged him for her sake not to dance with the woman she hated. Playfully chiding her for her jealousy, he gave her his promise that her request should be granted. She did not engage in the festivities, but pleading illness retired; though not to sleep, however, for she knew her husband and her rival were under the same roof. With weary eyes and aching heart she watched the dancers, but nothing occurred on the part of her husband to excite her jealousy until midnight, when, believing her to be asleep, he took his position in the next quadrille with the woman he had promised his wife to avoid as his partner. Stung to the heart at this exhibition of perfidy under the roof that sheltered her home, she watched the dance for awhile, her senses seeming to desert her, and then she left her room and sought her father, from whom she borrowed a pocket knife under the pretex of wanting to cut a toothbrush. Securing the knife she returned to the room in which the dancing was going on, reaching it just as the last set ended, and going up to her rival, who was moving toward a seat, seized her by the shoulder, and frenzied with jealous rage, said:—"You have danced enough!" at the same time drawing the open knife from the folds of her dress and plunging it deep into the woman's neck, making a horrible gash which penetrated nearly to the heart, and from which the blood spurted several feet in the air and spattered over the late dancers. Again the deadly blade was uplifted, and again it descended, plunged into the left breast in search of the heart, and yet again another blow, when the victim sank to the floor—dead. So quickly and so quietly was the awful tragedy enacted that not until the woman fell and the blood from her wounds was discovered did any one know what had happened. When the discovery was made, a rush was made toward the prostrate form, and voices cried:—

"Where is the man that struck that woman?"

To which the answer came in a tone and an attitude of proud defiance from the wronged wife:—

"I am the man that did it."

The horror-stricken crowd surged about the door, when her husband, realizing what his flirtation had brought about, grasped his wife and, drawing his pistol, said:—

"Gentlemen, I am going to leave this house and take my wife with me; and we are going through, if I have to shoot through."

The crowd gave way before him, and going out into the night, husband and wife disappeared under cover of the darkness, and for a whole year evaded the vigilance of detectives, with the incentives of $250 reward offered by the parents of the dead woman and $150 by the state for their apprehension. They were finally heard of in North Carolina, where they were arrested and brought to Pickens county and lodged in jail, and with them a little girl baby which has become a member of the family since their flight. The woman was tried for murder, convicted and sentenced to death, but through the efforts of friends the governor was induced to commute her sentence to ten years in the penitentiary, and on the 29th of May, 1878, she passed through Atlanta on her way to enter the service of her sentence at a convict camp in Washington county. So famous had this girl-wife and murderess become—her name and her deed already the theme of two continents—that the announcement of her presence attracted the largest throng ever assembled in the city, with the possible exception of one or more grand special days at the late exposition. The surging multitude grew wild over the desire to get a glimpse of her, while she appeared unconscious of her surroundings, maintaining a dejected and listless air. Her husband and child accompanied her.

The influence of a universal sympathy secured immunity from prison regulations, and she was allowed to wear her customary garb instead of the penitentiary stripes.

At the Washington county camp she remained nearly a year, during which she was occupied in making clothing for the other convicts, her husband remaining with her and holding the position of guard over a squad of prisoners. She was not restrained in her liberty, but remained with and had the privileges of a member of the family of the lessee. At the expiration of a year she fell to the lot of another lessee, whose camp was in Taylor county, whither she was removed, her husband following, her little girl dying during her stay at the Washington county camp. After eleven months in Taylor county she was removed to Barton county, where the family of the lessee resided, where she remained in the capacity of a domestic until last February, when the lessee, Colonel C. B. Howard, removed to Atlanta, bringing with him the fair convict, who is still retained as a servant in his household. Her husband remains with her and acts as her escort, no surveillance being kept on their movements. They attended the exposition frequently and alone.

To the reader of five years ago the name of this woman, the circumstances of her crime, the trial, conviction and death sentence will be familiar, for Kate Suthern appeared in the columns of every newspaper printed in this country and many out of it. The victim of her outraged love was Narcissa Cowart, or "Cis Cowart," as she was better known.

Although 22 years old now, Mrs. Sothern bears the age traces of 30. Her countenance wears the shade of a deep melancholy, and her great blue eyes a perpetual expression of sadness. A visit to her by your correspondent has led to a revival of the tragic history of her life, but not for the purpose of pandering to the sensational appetite of the public. Far from it. The columns of The Commercial are sought with higher aim, which is an appeal to every wife and mother in this broad land to lend her name to a petition to the governor of Georgia for Kate Sothern's pardon.—[Atlanta correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.

HUMAN DOCUMENTS IN FICTION.

M. Zola, if all tales are true—and it is unnecessary to say that we abstain carefully from guaranteeing or asserting their truth—has in his story, "Pot Bouille," taken a human document of a very complex and highly organized character. There is, it is said, in "Pot Bouille" a character named Duverdy, who is a lawyer, and there is actually at the Paris bar a lawyer of the name of Duverdy, who declares that he has been, so to speak, pirated. Like some of our own artists, he claims the copyright in his own idea, and especially the copyright of his own name. So it is said he has brought an action against the author of 'Nana' for the purpose of having the name expunged from the novel under penalty of forty pounds per day of damages. M. Zola is an obstinate person, and rather a lucky one, and it remains to be seen whether he will give in or not; and if he does not give in, whether the courts of law will take M. Duverdy's idea of his own copyright in his name, and of the proper royalty for the use of it. Forty pounds a day is, it must be acknowledged, rather a high tariff; but, after all, M. Duverdy must know the value of his name best.

It is not altogether clear whether the character of M. Zola's personage is supposed to be a copy of the character of M. Duverdy, or whether it is merely the use of the name for a professional "doppelganger" which is objected to. But the whole question of copying from the life in novels is rather a curious one. It is not, as is sometimes thought, by any means a new practice. Indeed, in the early novel-writing properly so-called it was rather the rule than the exception to figure living personages "of quality" or not, as the case may be, under tolerably transparent disguises of name. If they resented the thing, and were powerful enough, they took revenge by the stick, and nobody thought much the worse of them or of their victims for this exchange of compliments. It is since the disuse of personal encounters of this kind—it is doubtful whether even in France a case of duel would "lie" for representation in a novel unless it were done by name—that the practice has become specially objectionable, and in England, at least, it has been pretty generally disused of late years. Yet novelists recently or not long since dead notoriously indulged in it. In his early days Charles Lever was a special sinner in this respect, though, if it is true that the original of Major Monsoon used to give him regular "sittings" at Brussels and accept a consideration therefor, he cannot be said to have been very much to blame. Thackeray was something of a sinner in the same way, but his originals were generally public property, and he seldom, if ever, neglected the law which ordains that in such a case the portrait shall be sufficiently altered and generalized to make it something different from a mere photographic caricature. The instance of 'Bleak House' is too famous to need much mention. But there is no doubt that of all recent novelists Lord Beaconsfield was, in public estimation at any rate, the most audacious practitioner in this kind. He would have said himself—indeed we believe he did say so—that people were far too fond of setting his caps on their own or other people's heads, and that in nine cases out of ten the character of the novel was at most merely suggested by the character in life. There was a good deal of truth in this, no doubt, and the anxiety to identify A with B and C with D, which was occasionally shown in connection with his books, was sometimes puerile enough. As for French novelists of the first rank the most notorious offender in this line was doubtless Balzac. The identification of Henri de Marsay with Charles de Rémusat, of Nucingen with the elder Rothschild, and so on, was something more than accidental. It is natural that the school, which is nothing if not photographic, should fall into the same error.—[London Daily News.

ROWELL DOING WONDERS.

The Englishman Scores 300 Miles Before Eleven this Morning.

A Spirited Burst of Speed Just Before Noon.

Rowell Walking Easily, and Hughes Breaking Down.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—The score at midnight was, Rowell, 258; Hughes, 251; Hazael, 240; Hart, 217; Sullivan, 215; Fitzgerald, 211; Noremac, 236.

1.30 score—Rowell, 260; Hughes, 251; Hazael, 248; Hart, 219; Fitzgerald, 216; Sullivan, 215; Noremac, 260.

At 10.15 this morning Rowell had scored 300 miles.

A heavy rainstorm has caused a great falling off in the attendance.

At half-past ten Rowell was three hours ahead of his best record, and walked as easily as if he had only walked five miles. All the rest of the men were on the run.

At 11 o'clock the score stood:—Rowell 301, Hazael 295, Hughes 289, Fitzgerald 263, Hart 257, Sullivan 251, Noremac 239.

Rowell retired for half an hour. Returning he dropped in on the heels of Hazael, who had reduced the distance between them to five miles.

Hughes did not improve so well. He has developed a sudden lameness, and shows general symptoms of breaking down.

Noon score—Rowell, 307; Hazael, 301; Hughes, 290; Fitzgerald, 268; Hart, 260; Sullivan, 256; Noremac, 242.

Just before 12 o'clock Rowell made a spirited burst of speed.

FORTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

Senate.

Memorials were presented by Mr. Anthony from the City Council of Providence for an improvement of the harbor of that city, and by Mr. Cockerell, endorsing the recommendation for a fireproof building for the National museum and library.

Mr. Windom, from the committee on foreign relations, reported an original resolution which he said covered the subject matter of Mr. Bayard's resolution on Friday last and the matters there referred to by Mr. Edmunds. It provides for the investigation of the action of our diplomatic representatives in Peru and Chili and other matters connected with the relations of the United States and those countries by the committee on foreign relations of the Senate, and empowers the committee to send for persons and papers.

It was ordered that the resolution be printed.

Mr. Beck offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for an itemized statement of how, by whom and under what exigency or orders the annual appropriation of $200,000 for the year ending June 30, 1882, for mileage of army officers, has been expended in eight months, and whether the estimate of $62,600 which was asked for by them to meet the deficiency will be sufficient for the remaining four months, with his reasons for assuming that this amount will suffice. Adopted.

On motion of Mr. Anthony the library committee was instructed to inquire into the expediency of purchasing the papers of Major General Nathaniel Greene.

Bills were introduced:—

By Mr. Ingalls—To authorize the President to appoint Alfred Plessanton a brevet major general in the army of the United States and place him on the retired list.

By Mr. Sherman—Directing the printing of 5000 copies from the engraved plate of the memorial card prepared in honor of the late President Garfield for distribution by the Senate.

The postoffice appropriation bill was received from the House and referred to the committee on appropriations.

The post route bill was then proceeded with, and the amendments of the Senate committee read and agreed to. No appropriation is contained in the bill.

The House resolution tendering thanks to Hon. James G. Blaine for the appropriate address delivered by him in the Garfield memorial exercises, was, on motion of Mr. Sherman, taken from the President's table and concurred in.

The section in the post route bill, as amended, were adopted and the bill passed.

On motion of Mr. Allison, the Senate insisted upon its amendment to the immediate deficiency appropriation bill, and Messrs. Allison, Plumb and Beck were appointed conferees.

The Senate then took up the Chinese immigration bill to carry into effect the treaty by suspending the coming of Chinese laborers for twenty years after the sixty days succeeding the passage of the act. It allows them to come during these sixty days, and those who were in the country at the date of the treaty (Nov. 17, 1881,) to go and come at pleasure. The bill does not apply to Chinese officials or their servants, and also excepts from the suspension Chinese merchants, travelers, students and teachers, who, in coming and going, are to be registered at the Custom Houses, and are to produce passports from the Chinese government, showing that they individually belong to the excepted classes. The time at which the treaty takes effect is optional with China or the United States, and the preamble to the bill recites that in the opinion of the United States, the coming of Chinese laborers "endangers the good order of certain localities in its territory."

Mr. Farley moved an amendment prohibiting state and United States courts hereafter from admitting Chinese to citizenship, and repealing all laws in conflict with the act.

Mr. Miller, of California, who introduced and reported the measure, proceeded directly to a discussion of the general question, leaving the amendments to be considered later. Mr. Miller went over the whole subject, earnestly denouncing the Chinese and declaring that an adverse vote on the bill would be an invitation to empty the slave pens of China upon the soil of California.

During Mr. Miller's speech the habitues of the galleries were astonished by the appearance in the diplomatic gallery of four members of the Chinese delegation.

The bill was informally laid aside.

House.

Mr. Gibson, of Louisiana, introduced a joint resolution for the appointment of a committee of sixteen members, seven from the Senate and nine from the House to attend the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the discovery of the Mississippi River by De La Salle, to be held in New Orleans on the 9th of April, 1882. Referred to the committee on rules.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Cox and referred amending section 4400, title 52, Revised Statutes, so as to provide that all foreign private steam vessels carrying passengers, going out of any port of the United States, shall be inspected under United States laws. (A similar bill passed at the last Congress by the House but failed in the Senate.)

Mr. Hiscock, of New York, chairman of the committee on appropriations, reported back the immediate deficiency bill, with Senate amendments recommending concurrence in some and nonconcurrence in others of those amendments. The report of the committee was agreed to.

A majority report from the elections committee was submitted declaring that neither of the contesting delegates from Utah, Cannon or Campbell, is entitled to the seat, and a minority report declaring Cannon elected. The reports were laid on the table for future action.

The morning hour having been dispensed with, Mr. Kasson, of Iowa, moved that the House go into the committee of the whole on the tariff commission bill. The motion was antagonized by Mr. Hiscock, of New York, who contended that it would be better for the House to give this week to the consideration of appropriation bills. By the close of the week, the military academy, Indian and consular appropriation bills would probably be passed, and the tariff bill could be considered.

Mr. Kasson withdrew his motion with the understanding, however, that when the military academy and Indian appropriation bills were out of the way he would renew it.

The House then went into the committee of the whole on the military academy appropriation bill, which appropriates $318,857.

The question of the Star route contract coming up on a question of privilege Mr. Hiscock, of New York, defended the course of ex-Postmaster-General James. He said that while the Star route frauds might have been an ulcer in the Republican party and a Republican administration, it must be remembered that it had been cut out by a Republican official and a Republican administration. It had been cut out despite the insidious attacks and sneers and the attempts which had been made to strike down the brave official that headed the war against them.

The consideration of the military academy bill was resumed, and an amendment was adopted appropriating $10,000 for astronomical instruments to equip the new observatory at the academy.

The committee rose and reported the bill to the House, when it was passed.

Mr. Robinson, of New York, by request, introduced a bill to organize the National Labor League Railway Company of America for the purpose of constructing, operating and maintaining a railway from the Atlantic seaboard to Chicago, St. Louis and Council Bluffs.

The Speaker announced the appointment of Messrs. Hiscock, Robeson and Cox, of New York, as the House conferees on the immediate deficiency bill, and, pending action, the House at 4:50 P. M. adjourned.

A Number of Stores and Public Offices Already Destroyed.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

WATERVILLE, Me., March 1.—A fire broke out this morning at 1.30 in the rear of Mitchell's jewelry store and the Bank block, and spreading rapidly enveloped the whole building and the next. It is not yet under control. Thus far the loss is $15,000.

LATER.—The jewelry store, Percival's millinery store, the American Express Office, the Western Union Telegraph Office, some law offices, and the Odd Fellows' hall are gone.

THE SUPREME COURT APPOINTMENT.

Clarence Seward said to be Working for the Reversion of the Place After Conkling Declines.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

WASHINGTON, March 1. Hon. Clarence Seward of New York is in the city, and is calling on Senators and Representatives and urging his appointment to the Supreme Bench when Mr. Conkling declines.

Some of the Conkling men are bitter on President Arthur for not treating Mr. Conkling, as they say, with sufficient consideration.

A WATERY WASTE.

Terrible Havoc of the Floods on the Mississippi.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 1.—From Cairo, Ill., to Vicksburg, Miss., all is a dreary, watery waste. Thousands of cattle and other stock are drowned or dying of starvation. The inhabitants of the bottom land, driven from their houses, have sought safety on the ridges of land.

A TERRIBLE AFFAIR.

A Young School-Mistress Outraged and Murdered in Her School-Room.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

CINCINNATI, March 1.—Emily Numbers, aged 17, a school-teacher at Salem, Indiana was horribly outraged and murdered yesterday in her school-house by unknown villains.

Wall Street.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—Stocks opened weak ⅛ to 2 lower. There was a fractional decline on the early dealings, followed by an advance of ½ to 3¼. At 11 there was a reaction of ⅛ to 1⅜. After 11 the market sold up ½ to 2½, declining a fraction at noon.

You want to remember, however, brethren, that the Monroe doctrine was invented about the time the American sailor was just knocking the everlasting splinters out of everything that could float on blue water, and a Yankee privateer would rather fight a seventy-four gun frigate than catch mackerel. But times have changed since wooden walls went out of fashion, and the Queen Anne rage hasn't reached any navy yet except our own.—[Burlington Hawkeye.

IMAGINARY STORIES ABOUT THE JEANNETTE.

The French journal L'Exploration, says Nature of the 19th ult. publishes an extraordinary letter, purporting to have been received from one of the members of the Jeannette expedition, "describing the wandering of the ice-bound Jeannette, the horrors and beauties of an Arctic winter, and other features, which must be the product of a French imagination." It is almost needless to say this production must necessarily have been the writer's own baseless dream, and wholly without significance in respect to the Jeannette or her survivors. But it serves to illustrate the wild and fictitious stories that find circulation and credence in connection with Arctic expeditions. A summary of similar fictions which have been repeated until they have become facts in popular estimation would be voluminous and make some curious reading. In 1555, a Portuguese sailor reported that he had been driven by storms around the northern coast of North America (in 59 degrees north latitude, where we know there is land) but he discovered no ice or other obstacle to navigation. His country-man, Maldonado, three years later, published a narrative of his alleged voyage, in which, sailing from Newfoundland in a westward direction, and along the north coast of America, he came to a sound which separates Asia from America, thus accomplishing the famous "Northwest Passage," and returned in the middle of June to the Atlantic. "The heat at sea during the return journey," says Nordenskjöld, in describing Maldonado's reputed voyage, "was as great as when it is greatest in Spain, and meeting with ice is not mentioned." The strangest part of the story is that the narrative gained such acceptance as to be republished in French and Italian, and even in English annals. The still more remarkable fabrication of David Melgner's voyage, in 1660, from "the east coast of Asia north to 84° north latitude, thence between Spitzbergen and Greenland, and west of Scotland and Ireland back to Oporto Portugal"—all accomplished, as Nordenskjöld says, "as easily as drawing a line on the map," and "meeting with ice and northern animals is never spoken of"—shows to what a pitch of audacity such reports have been carried. The public will do well to discount all stories relating to the Jeannette and her crew except such as come authenticated to the proper authorities. Our telegrams from St. Petersburg yesterday give assurances that we shall soon now have official tidings from Captain De Long, which will set all speculations at rest.—[New York Herald.

There was an entertainment at Laramie a few evenings ago, at which the guests appeared in such costumes as their taste suggested. The following will give some idea of the occasion:—Mr. Nye wore a Prince Albert coat with the tails caught back with red yarn, and home-made sunflowers. He also wore a pair of velvet knee-breeches, which, during the evening, in an unguarded moment, split up the side about nine feet. This, together with the fact that one of his long black stockings got caught on the top of a window cornice, tearing a small hole in it, letting out the sawdust and baled hay with which he was made up, seemed to cast a gloom over the countenance of this particular guest. With one large, voluptuous calf, and the other considerably attenuated, Mr. Nye seemed more or less embarrassed.

The total cost to the city of Boston of cleaning the streets of snow deposited by the two great storms of several weeks ago is about $53,000.

AN ACROSTIC.

When an æsthetic young lady of town,

Made her way to the shops of renown,
Into Farrow's jewelry store,
Looking his Christmas goods o'er,
There his "too too" low prices she found.
Oh! then she cried, as she dimpled her chin,
Not too fast, Mr. F., but let us begin.

First of all, here are clocks for $1 or more,
And good timekeepers, too, "Are you sure?
Are you sure?"
Reliable watches, stem wind and stem set.
Remember! six dollars, the lowest price yet.
Oh! oh! oh! What forks and spoons, and knives for butter;
Why, such ridiculously low prices are "too utterly utter!"

Only look at these napkin rings going at cost,
Plated and silver, with bead work and frost;
Those are just lovely, "too beautifully too;"
In the light they now flash, they are so bright and so new.
Can you think of such prices for gold bands and rings?
It seems that as presents, all are fond of such things,
And these chains and necklets—do tell me the price?
Now that will suit Nannie, with locket so nice.

Just look at these charms, these pendants, these pins,
Enough, Mr. Farrow, my head nearly spins,
With the goods, and the prices, your own kind attention,
Each impression I now so well tell locally mention,
Leaves but one choice, with those who want to buy,
Each Christmas as it rolls around when I come is on the fly,
Remembrances, and other gifts, "thanks, thanks, most awfully."

POSITIVELY CURED BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External. Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

NOBODY.

If nobody's noticed you, you must be small,
If nobody's slighted you, you must be tall.
If nobody's bowed to you, you must be low,
If nobody's kissed you, you're ugly, we know,
If nobody's envied you, you're a poor elf,
If nobody's flattered you, flatter yourself.
If nobody's cheated you, you're a knave,
If nobody's hated you, you're a slave,
If nobody's called you a fool to your face,
Somebody's wished for your back in its place.
If nobody's called you a tyrant or scold,
Somebody thinks you of spiritless mould,
If nobody knows of your faults but a friend,
Nobody'll miss them at the world's end,
If nobody clings to your purse like a fawn,
Nobody'll run like a hound when it's gone,
If nobody's eaten his bread from your store
Somebody thinks you a miserly bore.
If nobody's slandered you, here is our pen,
Sign yourself "Nobody" as quick as you can.

SUNDRIES.

"There!" triumphantly exclaimed a Dead-wood editor, as a bullet came through the window and shattered the inkstand. "I knew that new 'Personal' column would be a success."

The Boston Advertiser says of the present condition of the stock market:—"He who can analyze the situation and foresee the result, and can act courageously upon his judgment, may easily lay the foundation of a fortune." We believe this is usually the case in any business. [Boston Post.

An illustrious painter who is travelling is invited to dine with a wealthy merchant. "I had a son myself who was passionately devoted to art," says his host, "and I sent him to Paris, where he was for ten years studying in the atelier of the famous Crepasson." "Ah, and was he successful?" "Successful? Sir, at this moment he owns the second largest factory of artificial fertilizers in the country."

A prince who used to be poor now fares sumptuously every day. "You see," he explains obligingly to a friend who has asked how he found the philosopher's stone, "there are lots of base-born churls that want to establish themselves in society. So whenever I come across one of them I borrow 10,000 francs." "But in return what—" "Oh, in return I punch him in the ribs and cave in his hat whenever we meet in public and he calls me 'old boy.'"—[From the French.

Constable Jones held an execution against a farmer, and when he called for a settlement the agriculturist took him out into a big pasture and pointed out a wild steer as the particular piece of property to be levied upon. Jones chased the steer around for a while, and then sat down, and, taking out his book, began to write. "What are you doing there?" asked the granger. "Charging mileage," replied the constable, without looking up. "Do I have it all to pay?" gasped the rancher. "You bet." "Then take this tame heifer here. I can't stand any such game as that."—[Detroit Free Press.

WEBSTER'S WIDOW DEAD.

The widow of Daniel Webster died at the Leroy homestead, New Rochelle, N. Y., on the night of the 26th ult. She was Mr. Webster's second wife, his first, Grace Fletcher Webster, having died in January, 1828. Caroline Bayard Leroy was the daughter of a prominent merchant of New York, and was 83 years of age. In alluding to this venerable relict of the departed statesman, a correspondent, who knew her well, wrote in 1879, as follows:—"Twenty miles from New York, near the line of the New Haven railway, is the semi-quaint olden-time village and semi-urban town of New Rochelle. A steep flight of stairs leads from the subterranean station landing to the light of upper day, and, after that is reached, a short, circuitous drive brings the traveler to the heart of the town, and to one of the points of interest of the place—the old Leroy house. This has been for many years the homestead of one of New York's oldest Knickerbocker families, but it has, at present, an interest in being the point from which took place the funeral of its distinguished late occupant, Mrs. Elizabeth Emmet Leroy, and also the residence of the widow of Daniel Webster. The old Leroy homestead is of the pattern found in many parts of the old colonial counties of the state. The main building is fronted by a high portico, its gable roof supported by high pillars. The wide double door leads into a great square hall, which runs from end to end of the house. At the rear a wide, winding staircase leads to the upper floors. This main building is flanked by two wings, constructed on the same liberal plan, and giving on the different floors a number of high-ceiled, roomy apartments. The furniture is plain, old fashioned and substantial, and the inside of the house shows marks of careful keeping. In front is a large lawn and a rather dilapidated fence, while in the rear is a large garden. Amid these surroundings during the past year Mrs. Webster has lived with her brother, Mr. William H. Leroy, and her lady companion. Although in her 79th year, she presents a perfect portrait of vigorous old age; stately in form and carriage as when the writer saw her each successive Sunday at old St. George's, 15 years ago. Whether in the garden watching the growth of her loved flowers, or in the spacious parlor of the Leroy house enjoying her ease, she is at all times the courteous, dignified lady of the olden time."

Winthrop Wrought-Iron Furnace!

Has been in use for the past seven years, and given entire satisfaction. I offer it to the public as the most desirable furnace on the market. Special attention is called to the new dust-flue damper and revertible flues, that are not found in the other wrought-iron furnaces. The dust-flue damper prevents escape of dust when shaking down; the revertible flues cause the flames to sweep the entire surface of the wrought-iron drum, thereby securing much greater radiation of heat, and consequently a great saving in fuel. Cost less to keep in repair than any other furnaces. Are powerful heaters, with moderate consumption of coal. I have sold over 70 in this city. Sold by

The Salvator for Invalids and the Aged. An Incomparable Aliment for the Growth and Protection of Infants and Children. A Superior Nutritive in Continued Fevers, and a Reliable Remedial Agent in all Diseases of the Stomach and Intestines.

THIS justly celebrated Dietetic Preparation, is, in composition, principally the GLUTEN derived from the WHITE WINTER FLINT WHEAT CEREAL, a sold extract, the invention of an eminent Chemist. It has not only been highly recommended but certified to by a large number of Chemists and Physicians—representing a very high degree of medical science—as the SAFEST, MOST ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE FOOD FOR THE GROWTH AND PROTECTION OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN, and for Mothers lacking Sufficient Nourishment for their offspring.

Unlike those preparations made from animal or vinous matter, which are liable to stimulate the brain and irritate the digestive organs, it embraces in its elementary composition—

That which makes strong Bone and Muscle. That which makes good Flesh and Blood. That which is easy of Digestion—never constipating. That which is kind and friendly to the Brain, and that which acts as a preventive of those Intestinal Disorders incidental to childhood.

And, while it would be difficult to conceive of anything in Food or Dessert more Creamy or Delicious, or more Nourishing and Strengthening as an aliment in Fevers, Pulmonary Complaints, Dyspepsia and General Debility, its Rare Medicinal Excellence in all Intestinal Diseases, especially in

THE SURGEON'S KNIFE.

Wonderful Surgical Operation—Removal of Urinary Stones from the Bladder—Successful.

Mr. Simeon Tietsell, of Saugerties, N. Y., had been treated for seven years by various physicians for what they call Stricture of the Uretha, without benefit. He finally consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who found his trouble to be Urinary Coleuli or Stone in the Bladder. The doctor at once removed the foreign bodies with the knife and then gave him his great Blood Specific, "Favorite Remedy," to prevent their reformation. The entire treatment was eminently successful, and Mr. Tietsell's recovery was rapid and perfect.

While "Favorite Remedy" is a specific in all Kidney and Bladder diseases, it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders, Constipation of the Bowels, and all the class of ills apparently inseparable from the constitutions of women. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to OFFICE practice. He treats all diseases of a chronic character, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery. 122-4w
